

Program of Events:

Time	Event	Location in Moore
8:00-8:45	Check-in/Registration	Lobby
9:00-10:30	Spanish-English code-switching in State College, New York, and Puerto Rico Rosa Guzzardo-Tamargo	127
11:00-1:00	Lunch Break	Campus
1:00-3:00	Poster Session Undergraduate Researchers	Basement
3:15-4:30	Language switching constraints: more than syntax? Data from Media Lengua John Lipski	127
4:30-5:00	Recognition of Travel Awardees Closing Remarks PSUxLing Organizing Committee	127

Congratulations to the recipients of PSUxLing Travel Awards:

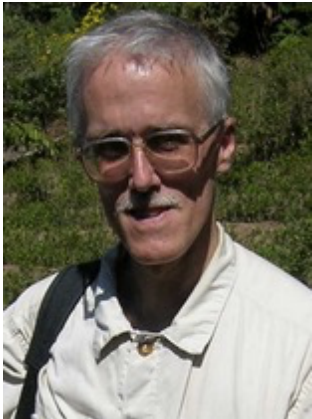

Khanin Chaipheth	Queen's College/CUNY
Matías Fernández-Duque	University of Pennsylvania
Stephanie Gonthier	Bucknell University
Melissa Mercado	UPR – Río Piedras

Presenters and Research Topics:

Nick Anderegg Penn State University	Effects of L1 orthography on L2 phonological acquisition
Jaye Aster Broder Penn State University	Code-switching as a tool to investigate cross language syntactic priming in spontaneous speech
Khanin Chaipheth Queen's College/CUNY	The Status of Inverse Scope in Thai: A Comparison between Native and Heritage Speakers
Maria Cupery Calvin College	Comparing American and Turkish Pop Songs
Melinda Dennis Penn State University	The interaction of lexically similar languages: Do Palenquero-Spanish bilingual code-switch?
Leyla Eldridge Queen's College/CUNY	Syntactic and Semantic Constraints of English Embedded Indirect Questions
Paige Elinsky Penn State University	Sentential Codeswitching in Non-Habitual Spanish-English Codeswitchers
Matías Fernández-Duque U. of Pennsylvania	A new conversation paradigm for the experimental study of code-switching in bilingual speech
Stephanie Gonthier Bucknell University	Rate of Agreement Attraction Errors Influenced by Experimental Methodology
Kyra Krass Penn State University	The role of discourse context in pronoun resolution
Melissa Mercado UPR – Río Piedras	Spanish-English codeswitches involving the auxiliary phrase: Judgements by bilinguals living in Puerto Rico
Hope Schmid Penn State University	Normalization of stimulus variability across language and music: Lexical tones and musical intervals.
Javier Soliván Penn State University	Distributional and frequency properties in semi-spontaneous Spanish-English codeswitching
Mary Beth Spang Penn State University	Individual and group differences in the production of Lengua Palenquera

Keynote Speakers:

Dr. Rosa Guzzardo-Tamargo is an assistant professor of Spanish at Universidad Nacional de Puerto Rico, Río Piedras. Her research focuses on bilingualism, psycholinguistics, language processing, and code-switching.

Dr. John Lipski is Edwin Erle Sparks Professor of Spanish and Linguistics at Penn State. He has made major contributions to the fields of phonology, contact linguistics, dialectology, and bilingualism. He has authored a number of books on code-switching, language history, and variation in the Spanish-speaking world.

PSUxLing would like to thank its Penn State sponsors:

Department of Spanish, Italian, and Portuguese
Liberal Arts Undergraduate Studies
The Center for Language Science

PSUxLing

PENNSTATE

Penn State
Undergraduate Exhibition in
Hispanic and General Linguistics

3 October, 2014